

I'm not robot!

Help your child get started reading nonfiction with this quick worksheet that introduces first graders and second graders to reading that goes beyond fairytales. Kids can read a list of different genres of writing, like poetry, plays, and textbooks, as they begin to differentiate between fiction vs. nonfiction. Next, they're asked to brainstorm a few more examples to add to the list. Finally, they will practice reading fiction and nonfiction excerpts to see if they can determine which one is which. Sample Fact or Fiction Worksheet Nonfiction stories are based on real life events, and often shed more light on specific events, places, people, or things. These free nonfiction worksheets will teach children more about things like wildlife, sea life, government, the dentist, and so much more. Read the passages aloud to your children, slowly, and have them repeat the words after you. When you come across a new word for them, point at the word and carefully enunciate the sounds. After, you can ask them to attempt reading the passages on their own and offer your help where they struggle. At the end of the passages, go through the simple questions with your kids. Reading, Writing Which book looks like fiction? In this reading worksheet, your child learns to identify whether books are fiction or nonfiction based on their covers and titles.
